CAMPER'S DELIGHT
One can of corn
One can of kidney beans
One pound of hamburger steak
1 large onion

Slice onion thin and brown in butter in deep frying pan. Add the hamburger steak and cook moderately, then add the contents of the can of corn and beans, cooking all until piping hot. Three delicious meals in the Maine would be pronounced this most satisfying.

SHREDDED WHEAT BREAKFAST IDEAL

"Now brooms sweep clean, but the old broom goes in the corner." Remember that old saying of your grandmother's day? And now we'll see how we can apply it to our modern food habits. No matter how many vitamins, calories or food elements we consume, we must, for our health's sake, supply the necessary amount of roughage.

But we suffer for lack of bulk, which used to be made up largely of the roughage element. A very satisfactory answer is shredded wheat, made with all the bran of the whole wheat, providing in a pleasant and delicious food the bulk roughage we need for health. Shredded wheat is the ideal breakfast food. Served with milk or cream and fresh fruit it is satisfying, and "plays with you." Instead of the usual heavy breakfast, why not offer the family a "shredded wheat" breakfast, ten or three mornings a week? Fresh fruits, strawberries, raspberries, sliced bananas or melon cubes, dewy hot tea of cold milk, fragrant coffee, apple, wheat. Can you think of a better start for a long, hot day in town?

MACARONI SAUSAGE LOAF

3/4 lb. plain macaroni
10 small link sausages
2 medium onions, sliced
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 cup hot water
Parboil the macaroni for nine minutes in four quarts rapidly boiling water to which one tbsp. salt has been added. Drain. Place sausage in frying pan and cook until half done. Drain on paper. Put in buttered casserole a layer of the macaroni, and on this lay five of the sausages. Cover with the layer of sliced onions, season with salt and pepper, and dot with butter. Repeat with second layer. The top layer should be of onions. Pour water over all. Cover and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. Serve from the casserole.

Summer Thirst Quenchers Cooling and Healthful

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over WHDH by the Boston Evening American

LET'S TALK a little today about not weather beverages, summer thirst quenchers—and some 'r' not! (I mean, please!)

Don't it a fact that some lead drinks leave us within a very few minutes often thirstier than "before taking?"

Summer drinks can be not only cooling, but also very healthful, especially if made with a base of fresh fruit juices. Among these, oranges and lemons take the palm, containing as they do, healthful vitamins and elements to counter-balance the acid-forming heavier foods.

These fruit juices are easy to prepare and make a delicious base for an endless variety of refreshing concoctions. And, of course, I must drop in a word of wisdom about the citrus fruits containing the very elusive vitamin C in large quantities, and it's this vitamin, you know, which has much to do with the prevention of tooth decay and in general bodily well-being.

On very hot days when you have been exercising, don't make the drinks too chilly. Pour the fluid over the ice. Then take out the ice and serve the beverage immediately. This chills the drink to just the proper temperature.

An extra special delicious fruit-ade is made by draining a can of crushed pineapple. Measure 8 tbsps. of the crushed fruit and add juice from the can, 2 tps. lemon juice, 1 cup strained orange juice, 4 cups boiling water, 3 tps. sugar. Let stand until cold, add another 4 cups sugar if necessary, strain and serve very cold.

FRESH FRUIT ORANGEADE
4 oranges
1 lemon
2 1/2 cup sugar

Sing a Song of Frankforts

There is nothing more really delicious than the frankfort, provided, of course, you are sure of its pedigree and know that its ancestors can be investigated without fear. But the brand of frankforts we use in the Martha Lee Cooking School is a far different criterion from the one you buy at the "hot dog" stands at the beach.

Our frankforts are made of choicest meat, a skillful blending of flavors, cooked to the exact minute of perfection and every step of their manufacture carefully watched by experts. To help add variety to your menu, to save money and to acquaint you with the finer frankfort flavor, I have a few frankfort suggestions for you today.

Frankforts with sauerkraut are a popular combination, and make a wholesome, hearty meal for summer suppers.

FRANKFORTS AND SAUERKRAUT

1 small onion, cut fine
1 tsp. butter or drippings
2 tps. flour
2 c. water
1 can sauerkraut
1 lb. frankforts
Brown onion in fat, add flour, and when well blended add water. Season to taste. When thickened add sauerkraut, including juice. Cover closely and simmer one hour. The last half-hour of cooking add frankforts, pricked. Watch carefully to prevent splitting. Serve with mashed potato.

FRANKFORTS WITH VEGETABLE SALAD

On individual plates place lettuce leaves. Arrange in piles small servings of potato salad, cold cooked carrots, peas, string beans or lima beans, or beets marinated in French dressing, four vegetables in all. Cut one cold boiled frankfort in halves lengthwise and then crosswise. Place pieces as spiced between heaps of salad. Top with mayonnaise and decorate with strips of pimiento and olives.

Sprinkle creamed potatoes with chopped pimiento instead of chopped parsley occasionally, for a change in color and flavor.

To wash the vinegar crust rinse with cold water, add a half teaspoon of scouring powder and a half handful of navy beans. Shake well, until stains have disappeared. Rinse with hot soapy water and how it will shine!

Fish will not stick to the pan if a little salt is sprinkled on the pan just before the fish is put on to fry, and be sure the pan is hot.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Boston is filling up with tourists from all sections of the country. Walk along Tremont and Washington sts., and you will find them trying to locate our historic treasures through their guide books.

You will find them flocking to Copp's Burying Ground near the Old North Church, Salem st. At other parts of the North End, on Hanover st. and adjoining streets, they will be seen seeking relics of the past.

Down at 511 Atlantic ave., the site of Griffin's wharf, where the tea was thrown overboard, is a popular spot. The Old State House, with its curios, is another.

What is needed in Boston are guides to direct these tourists. They should be designated as guides, and be paid by the city. Boston can ill-afford to lose the interest and good will of these tourists from all parts of the country. They look like wanderers now, browsing around and looking for someone to guide them, to the Granary Burying Ground on Tremont st. and other places.

Let us help them more.

E. E. KELLOGG.

English Safety Rules

Might Help Here

Editor Boston American:

A friend of mine in England has sent me a code for pedestrians, put forth by the Safety First Association in that country. I thought that this code might be interesting to your readers, so take this opportunity of sending it. The rules are not new, but are suggestive.

Here they are:
(1) Always use the footpaths and refuges where available.
(2) Always look right and left before stepping into the roadway.

(3) Always choose the least dangerous point from which to cross.

(4) Always select a favorable opportunity to cross.

(5) Always keep your mind on the traffic whilst crossing.

(6) Always beware of stepping from behind one vehicle into the way of another.

(7) Always take extra care when the road is greasy.

(8) Always realize the danger of boarding or leaving moving vehicles.

(9) Always look out for traffic before boarding or leaving trams.

(10) Always retain your presence of mind if caught in traffic and avoid dodging about.

(11) Always be ready to help children to cross.

He Seeks Information on

Unemployment Insurance

Editor Boston American:

Could any of your readers throw light on the subject of unemployment insurance, which your paper referred to some time ago? Then I would like to go to some information about stabilizing employment. This is done to keep employment steady. I know that it has proven successful in several large corporations in Ohio and other states. Is it to any extent favored among the large corporations of Greater Boston?

HENRY HUTCHINS.

Summer Styles Are Pleasing to This Woman

Editor Boston American:

The scene of wearing pretty dresses is on Tremont st. any afternoon. Here one gets a very complete as well as varied idea of feminine adornment. How pretty they make dresses today for young women. This is the striking feature of the fashions of this age.

There is a great deal of thinking put in these displays. It is mind in a summer dress. Certainly they could not have been devised in a hurry. They are the result of much planning, undoubtedly. They are not imported ideas in dress, though some marks of the style and pattern would indicate this. You cannot say that they borrow ideas. They are improved ideas, in many instances, with much striking originality here and there in their makeup. But Tremont st. is the way of beautiful dresses, much more than any other street because it is wider. Just notice this.

ELLA S. SPRING.

Has Word of Praise for Earrings for Men

Editor Boston American:

Reference to men wearing earrings in your letter column was very interesting to me. I have always advocated this. The first time they were worn by men was in the High Renaissance period of Italy.

Then instead of earrings, black silk strings often were seen hanging from the lobes of ears. Sir Walter Raleigh, William Shakespeare and the Duke of Buckingham seldom appeared without these ear flappers. But now that the olden times in Boston are being revived in your paper men used muffs then to shield them from the cold. In the "Boston News Letter" March 1, 1713, an advertisement of a man appeared in this shape: "Please return my muff, lost in church while saying my prayers on the Lord's Day."

Yes—the Controlled-Temperature Process is expensive—

Certainly it cost us considerable money to install the wonderful "Controlled-Temperature Process" in the Puritan plant. But—this every second watchfulness of the manufacturing process results in every batch of Puritan being up to specifications and like every other batch. One reason why Puritan Malt is "different" is because it is absolutely the same—perfectly uniform every where—all the time. —most all other brands give you less quantity than Puritan—the Puritan can hold 10% more than most.

SO QUANTUM AIR MEET TO BE REVIVED

By GEORGE HAMBLEN

The revival of the Squantum Air Meet, the first ever held in this country, which occurred in 1909 and 1910, is planned for the weekend of July 18 and 20, at Denison Airport, according to Harland F. Banks, head of the National Air-Pilots Association, director of the affair.

With Banks as the director, backed by the combined support of the City of Quincy, the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, the city aviation committee, and officials of Denison Airport, the meet looks as the greatest ever held in the history of Boston. It will be the first air meet in this section since 1921, when the World Flyers were invited to Boston Airport.

For three purposes, the dedication of the enlarged Denison Airport, a review of the progress made in air planes during the past two decades, and as a part of the Tercentenary celebration of Aquilary, the show will be the outstanding air feature of the entire Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, according to Banks.

While there has been received from 39 plane owners, and while Banks is positive that at least that number will be in attendance, a much larger number is looked for when the first day of the show arrives. Army, Navy, National Guard and commercial planes will vie for the prizes to be offered for each of the many events.

Featuring the entire show will be the 1930 version of the Boston Light

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain the sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—lack of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous waste—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

Try it regularly way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cereal. Sprinkle it over salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-rooms. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Tommy Armour Heads Early Finishers in J. S. Open

Mac Smith and Hagen trail

enters began a battle of their own for the lead of the day. Tommy Armour, the black ball, who shared the top rung yesterday with Mac Smith at an even 70, two under par, in 37, Smith also reached the turn in 37, both the same as yesterday.

Bobby Jones, the defending champion, who shot 71 yesterday, was among the late starters, further delayed by complications setting back the playing schedule.

Another late starter was "Wifty" Coy, the Brooklynite, who had 71 yesterday, and Horton Smith, who shot 72 yesterday.

Among the early finishers, Wiffy Coy, of the New York contingent, added a 7 to his 70 for a total of 140.

Valley Hagen, with a threatening 72 to go on, started one over par with a 73 on the first hole of his second round. His drive hovered to the rough, so he then made a 20-foot putt for a birdie three on the par four second hole.

His Walter got his par three on the third.

Hagen turned off the next three in 5-3-3, leaving him two over par for six holes. In the next hole, he made a 20-foot putt for a birdie three on the par four fifth, Hagen recovered well to get a stroke on the hole, however, he missed the putt.

Hagen finished the first nine in 35, a record for the J. S. Open. He then dropped a stroke to par at the tenth as he started back.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

STARTING THE LONG 72-HOLE JOURNEY

Jones From Georgia Suffers From Heat

By O. R. KEELER.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 11 (AP)—Along in the cool of the evening of Thursday, when the thermometer on the Interlachen Country Club was away down 69 degrees, two veteran Scots decided to take the lead for the first day of the national open golf championship away from Bobby Jones and Wiffy Coy, who had held it at 71 all day, and when the shades of night and a few feeble and well-groomed flocks of mosquitoes had settled about Mirror Lake, Tommy Armour, national champion of 1927, each having done last and longest nine holes in 33.

And there the matter rested for a few hours while the dried-out competition absorbed gallons of water in effort to regain the fluid level of their blood. The heat and the sun had so much to do with the matter that it was not until 10 o'clock that the players began to move.

If you haven't tried it or at least observed it, you can have no idea how freely the human body can absorb water. Tommy Armour, who had 71 yesterday, and Horton Smith, who shot 72 yesterday, were among the late starters, further delayed by complications setting back the playing schedule.

Another late starter was "Wifty" Coy, the Brooklynite, who had 71 yesterday, and Horton Smith, who shot 72 yesterday.

STARTERS SET FOR $60,000 RACE IN CHI

Chicago, July 11—All serious training for the $60,000 classic stakes to be run at Arlington Park Saturday is over and the 10 starters, more or less, have finished their work.

The three teams of greatest importance in the general mid-summer to be over the condition of the track, the odds on (fast) Fox, the sophomore, who will go to the post as a solidly backed as a 2-1 favorite.

Man O' War, and as to what horse has the best chance to run second to Gallant Fox.

Gallant Fox has not run this year in a month or so, but he was won both the Kentucky derby and the Preakness, and he is a 2-1 favorite.

The going was slow yesterday and the conditions were not ideal. The going was slow yesterday and the conditions were not ideal.

That Gallant Fox will go to the post as a 2-1 favorite is certain. He surely will not be a 2-1 favorite.

THE MONARCH OF THE MEADOW TRADERS, Bobby Jones, is shown in this telephoto starting his quest for this long drive off the first tee. Jones finished the first day well up in the running with a 71. This marked not only Armour and Smith shot 70's. But a one-stroke lead is nothing to Bobby the Barrier. He's still the choice of almost everyone in win.

ROSLINDALE DOWN MALDEN

Roslindale's strong hold on first place in the Boston Ten League by winning out Malden, 6 to 4, at Pearl St. Stadium, At. John N. R. South Boston, 7 to 1.

Malden scored its four runs on balls and one single in the sixth inning of its game with Roslindale.

Paul Lottos, being outplayed, struck out eight batters, but he proved too many for the heavy-hitting Roslindale club.

St. John had an easy time with the Roslindale outfielders after the first four innings, scoring seven runs in all, and four South Boston, Carl Sumner, with two hits and two runs, started for St. John.

HEAVY AFFECTED CHICK

Even's Eyesight

Chick Evans, who won both the open and the amateur championships of 1924, told me the best of affected him curiously in that quite number of years.

He had had the vision of the backer room about 10 o'clock, but he could not see it. He had failed and then took out of it for him so he could get ready for the shower.

The apron description of Mr. C. J. James Hastings (July 11) in City yesterday was, in my view, very interesting.

"Tolly" said a prim lady, a specialist sitting under a large shade tree, about 200 feet from the water and found the lady of the house.

Mr. Tolly was dressing and he could not see it. He had failed and then took out of it for him so he could get ready for the shower.

"How much do you want?" he asked. "Three pounds, normally," he answered.

I put the damp bundle on the table, but this increase did not include what Mr. Tolly had not altogether by radio. After some

Braves Open Home Stay With Cubs Tomorrow

TRIBE OUT TO GO INTO EAST DIVISION

By JOE CASHEMAN
Boston is without baseball today. The Red Sox are on their way to Cleveland to open their second Western tour and the Braves, back from a tour of the circuit, are awaiting the arrival of the champion Chicago Cubs at the Wigwam, tomorrow.

The Wagner's home stay, just concluded, was nothing much to brag about, yet it could have been a lot worse.

The Braves' flock won series from Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and Boston in the first three games, winning 11, which is as much faster pace than they have maintained for the season to date.

They managed to get out of the cellar for a while, and although they are back again, their prospects of finishing out of the basement are much brighter than they have been at mid-season for several years.

The support the team received was remarkable. Hardly a day was there less than 5000 present. After that 20,000 saw the twin bill on the Fourth. There were other gatherings of more than 20,000. New England, the largest weekday crowd in years, saw Wednesday's double-header.

Baseball may be dead in some cities, but there is nothing the matter with it in the Hub when a last place club can draw like that.

Braves Are Well Up in Pennant Grind

And the Braves should do even better as far as attendance is concerned, for they are very much in the race for a first division berth and are less than 10 games back of the top.

They lost a little ground on the road, but their record of 15 victories and 13 defeats is most commendable.

Chicago and Brooklyn caused their downfall. They lost eight and won but two against these rivals. They took three out of four from both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and split even with Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Back on their own stamping grounds, the Warriors figure to get even better. They haven't got much pitching strength, but they pack plenty of punch and that's what counts these days.

What's more, they have a great manager in Bill McKechnie, who is certain to occupy the basement, he traded and shifted and put so much pep in those he retained that the Tribe has been troublesome to all opposition all season.

McKechnie Wise in Securing Chatham

He made a ten strike when he secured Charlie "Buster" Chatham from Portland, Ore. in exchange for Gene Robertson and Billy Rhoad.

The diminutive third sacker looked far too small to make the grade when he arrived here, but he stepped in and made good immediately.

He hit right at the start and is still clicking 'em regularly and merrily and his fielding is steady. If not brilliant.

Sammy Fuller to Try for Kayo

With Alex MacLean, midgetmaster for Braves Field, and Bob McKirdy, matchmaker for Fenway Park, seeking a return matinee between Sammy Fuller and Andy Callahan, Fuller will march into battle against Billy Lynch of Providence at Theillon, R. I., next Monday night intent upon scoring a knockout victory.

The little Illinois kid is Sammy Fuller, well along the comeback trail. His bout with Callahan some weeks ago was his first start, and Fuller did not get the feel of the ring and the smell of the ring until late in the bout, when he tore into Callahan with a two-fisted barrage of punches.

Now Fuller is confident that he is back in the form of a few years ago, when he was coming to the top of the heap. He is viger and stronger than ever before. His hands, which gave him trouble as long as he was hard and fit, and the Pancho Villa of the North End are nothing but a knockout victory over Lynch.

Clausius Antoszewski, who is known as Chessy Antos in this age of "shorts," is working hard at Columbus Park in South Boston.

Antos, who may be recalled as one of the fastest backs on college gridirons last fall when he was a member of Joe McKenney's Boston College football team, is now in the life-saving department of the city of Boston.

In the process of acquiring a handsome tan, Chessy is getting in condition for next season's football campaign, with Boston College and making enough money to satisfy even the Carnegie Foundation that he's not a subject for one of their lengthy inquiries.

Antos about as busy a day as anybody would want. He lives in Salem and attends the Boston College Summer School.

This isn't being done on the orders of the dean's office. Chessy's ambition, though he has a slight shanking to be something of a Red Grange, is really to become a famous doctor.

So he's putting around chemicals and test tubes at the Heights in order to reach his goal.

Long Island Girl Enters Revere Meet

Not only in New England but also in other sections has next Wednesday night's swimming meet at Revere attracted attention. From Bayside, L. I., comes the entry of Miss Theresa Hess for the National Junior A. A. U. women's 880-yard freestyle swim.

Besides the national junior A. A. U. 880-yard swim for women, there also is a national junior A. A. U. men's 880-yard swim, and New England men's 100-meter and women's lowboard diving championships.

BRAVES PLAY AT MALDEN TONIGHT

The Boston Braves, just home from a trip around the circuit, play an exhibition game tonight at the Pearl St. field, Malden, under the auspices of the Malden Lodge of Elks.

The Tribe had no game listed for today in the regular schedule, and was glad to arrange the exhibition.

Last season the Braves put on an exhibition tilt at Malden, under the auspices of the Elks. The game drew a big crowd.

The tilt will be a workout for the Braves after its trip from Brooklyn for the game with the Chicago Cubs tomorrow at Braves Field.

Smith Leaves the Front for Home

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

One evening of soundest after another to the lot of the woman, Helen Smith is a member, Commander of the "Mrs. Lich," a hard task-master. She works, little sleep and her food about as good as when Smith's mother writes about her life as a soldier. But letters from her war, mother, Mrs. Lich, are true. Deaths are numerous and hard. "Mrs. Lich" questions that girl regarding Tom's and Skippy's arrival, which led to a fight. Skippy is a soldier. Girl and her mother are shocked at her language.

CHAPTER 26

I am afraid of going mad—of being discovered one morning among the boulders at the foot of a rocky hillside as was The Bug the day following on the air raid that smashed the station and the convoy train to matchwood—a night of smashings, though none so cruelly smashed as The Bug. She had lost her way and missed her footing in the dark, and the powers that be. This on the brightest night in a season of moonlit nights. An accident—so The Bug tests alongside Toth in the black cemetery in the shadow of The Witch's Hand. An accident—drivers walking about with sudden eyes and shiverings that are not pleasant listening—and I, in the hours after the midnight convey, sitting thinking that that are best not thought—my fingers light against Commander's thick, red throat, glowing in the ebbing strength of that quiet, healthy body until I am sick and faint with murderous longing.

Smith Haunted

By MAM' MEA

That impulse has gone—but in its place has come something worse. I am haunted now as The Bug was haunted. Whenever I close my aching eyes a procession of men passes before me—manned men; men with neither arms nor legs; gaunt men coughing, coughing, coughing; men with dreadful, burning eyes; men with heads and faces half shot away; raw, bleeding men with the skin burned from their turned faces; tortured, all watching me as I lie in my bed-bag trying to sleep—an endless procession of horrors that will not let me rest. I am afraid.

Protest Site for Newton Court

A protest signed by 200 Newton citizens, headed by Mayor Joseph Weeks, protested to Gov. Allen in the State House, declared the choice of site for the Newton courthouse was "a blot upon the face of the city." The petitioners included Matt R. Jones, president of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co., and a committee of the Newton Improvement Association, headed by Edward A. Andrews.

Washington Cook in Race Against Brother

Washington Cook announced today he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for state auditor in opposition to his brother, Alvin R. Cook, incumbent for the last 14 years. The issue of a statement which he issued at the State House contradicted a recent statement in which he declared his long-standing differences with his brother had been "switched up" and that he would not oppose him at the polls.

Men Who Are Whole

The Beauty of Them

Oh, the beauty of the men who are whole, who have straight arms and legs, whose bodies are not crumpled and whose eyes are not hollowed, whose faces are smooth and whose mouths smile instead of grimacing painfully—oh, the beauty and wonder of men who are whole. Rayton, young and strong and handsome, his eyes serene and happy now as they were the afternoon of the concert in the prisoners' compound—or are they staring up unseeingly somewhere in the black Land, with that fair skin of his dyed an obscene blue by poison gas, his young body shattered and scattered and bleeding. Roy Evans-Mewington—he is still smiling and eager-faced as on the day he was photographed in his second Lieutenant's uniform—or has the smile frozen on his face and gone. Oh, the beauty of men who are whole and sane. Shall I ever know a lover who is young and strong and unmarred by war, who has not gazed on what I have gazed? Shall I ever know a lover whose eyes reflect my image without the shadow of war? Between us?

Joseph W. Powell Resigns Because of Pressure of Business Duties

Louis E. Kirstein, philanthropist and vice-president of Wm. Filene's Sons Co., today was appointed chairman of the Port Authority to succeed the late Guy W. Currier.

He was serving as a member of the authority as an appointee of Governor Allen when the board was organized a year ago.

At the same meeting the members named the resignation of Joseph W. Powell, who resigned because of business duties in connection with his New York and Boston shipping interests.

The other members of the Port Authority are Richard Parkhurst, secretary; Charles E. Ware, Jr., and Frank R. Davis.

DEVENS READY FOR VISITORS

More than one ton of provisions, condemned as unfit to handle by Regular Army and National Guard authorities in New England during the past year, was destroyed yesterday at Camp Devens, in order to remove the constant menace they constituted to the camp while placed in magazines. The destruction of the provisions was done quietly on the old Shirley rifle range unknown to most of the guardsmen and citizens in the camp.

The first of the camp will be Sunday when and at more veterans of the Yankee Division will come here to guests of the camp and next Wednesday when Governor Day and Lieutenant Day will be observed. If weather conditions are on Sunday, a contest of horse racing will be held at the track. Another big event is expected when the British Army arrives with their staff.

Plans to about complete for the new exhibits of the Yankee Division during the summer. The exhibit will be transferred in the States observance of the tercentenary next Tuesday at all offices and 350 enlisted in a, carrying 122 uniforms, eight colors and eight standards.

The 101st Engineers have been training for several days in the camp of arms of the British and Continental forces of 1775.

Tomorrow the Engineers are to be in Concord to reenact the fight at the Concord Bridge.

HUB ELKS MUST SELL HOTEL

The Boston lodge, "mother" of Massachusetts Elks, today was confronted with the ultimatum of the grand lodge that the Elks' Hotel must be sold and new quarters located before December 1 if the charter, revoked following a liquor raid, is restored.

The decision was made at Atlantic City yesterday, following a plea by Past Exalted Grand Master John P. Malley of Boston.

It came as the final action of the retiring grand exalted ruler, Col. Walter P. Andrews.

According to Col. Andrews, the Boston Elks will have to get "out of the hotel business, dispose of the present building and establish a lodge in other quarters."

If in the estimation of the new rulers, the lodge has complied with these conditions, the charter will be restored. If not, the revolution will stand.

Another century-old bank bank took its place in the Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance Society (Commissioner Leslie G. Griggs).

"We have much pleasure in announcing the opening of the new institution for Savings especially in view of the fact that it is open to the public on July 15, 1936. This makes it possible for any person residing in Massachusetts to register with the new institution for Savings Bank Life Insurance for a maximum amount of $10,000 and for old age annuities in the maximum amount of $100 per month."

"The new Massachusetts Institution for Savings has had 165 years of experience in the savings business—having begun business in 1771. It is the oldest savings institution in the savings department now operating in the United States. Its president is Oliver Prescott and its vice president is Arthur MacAviney. The total assets of the institution are $21,000,000. It was organized in 1771 and has in fact on July 15th, 1936, had just 31 years' experience."

BOND MARKET FORCES AGAIN IMPROVED

New York, July 11 (AP)—Bond-improved substantially again today as the market continued to be buoyed by the railroad, utility and foreign issues.

Fixed men are reported to be encouraged by the bank uptick which resulted from the broadened trading this week. Buying has been of an inevitably higher level of prices if the production continues to be toward bond buying.

The money market remains virtually unchanged at its low level and this with the continued ability of equity issues, contributes to a strong fundamental position for a rise in bond prices.

Bank support shows another increase this week. Banks in the New York Federal reserve district added $4,000,000 of bonds to their holdings, bringing the total of purchases to $48,000,000 since the new redemptive rate was established.

Both Mortgage Bonds and Convertible Issues were in demand today. Attention General is topped by the year's high established yesterday. Pennsylvania's gain added the same to rise in a new top for the year.

Louis San Francisco's, a large issue, was popular with buyers. Long Island Refunding is seen strong with nearly 100,000 shares. Louisville & Nashville's was heavily traded and prices higher.

Ned Haven's 4's were firm. St. Paul Adjustment Co. Chicago Corp. & Chicago River Island & Pacific's 4's were active with prices found favor.

Several utility issues were well met. Denver Gas & Electric's were strong, along with its two points. Detroit Edison's 4's and Public Service's 4's sold at their high prices of the year, and new issues made by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Southern Bell Telephone Co.

Avoid interest was displayed in leading European government issues and British, French, and Italian issues made moderate gains. Eastern Nitrate's strength was apparently influenced on further reports of completion of the Chilean Nitrate combine. Kroger and Ford's 4's were active and firm.

United States Government's were dull and slightly lower.

Phelan Says Time to Invest is Now
James C. Phelan, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said in a speech before the American Bond Association that the time to invest in bonds is now.

"I think the present is an opportune time to invest in government bonds, well seasoned common stocks of the larger companies, and in the common stocks of long established corporations of proven worth."

New York, July 11 (AP)—Penn-Grade Crude Oil in the Bradford field in Pennsylvania and in the adjacent Allegheny field in New York is selling at $2.10, the lowest price in 1936.

HOW'S BUSINESS? ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY
By FREDERICK FOSTER

Merchandise Car Loadings Show Well
The car loadings of merchandise and other miscellaneous manufactured commodities during the first five months of 1936 compared with the same periods of the past five years. Figures exclude raw materials such as coal, grain, live stock, lumber and ore. Source: American Railway Association.

Car loadings of merchandise and other manufactured products on their way to the ultimate consumer are a truer index of commercial activity than all loadings which include raw materials. 1936 is only 2.63% under the average for the five preceding years. And part of this decrease is due to the large number of bigger cars which have been placed in operation during the past year.

Under False Pretenses

Treaty Negotiators Distort Real Feeling in England and Japan

Of all the false pretenses under which the negotiators of the London naval treaty are pressing for its ratification, perhaps the most flagrant concerns the alleged similarity between opposition to the treaty in the United States and such criticism of it as has been heard in Great Britain and Japan.

The truth is that instead of being similar, the nature of this opposition is fundamentally different.

American opposition to the treaty, as the minority report from the Committee on Foreign Relations points out, "comes from those holding the responsible positions whose duty it is to advise on such matters."

The general board of our navy is unanimously of opinion that the treaty is grossly unfair and dangerously disadvantageous to the United States. This is also the opinion of the chief of naval operations, the head of the American war plans division, the chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, of five former commanders in charge of the fleet and of the admiral who is about to take command of the fleet.

But in Great Britain the first lord of the admiralty, Mr. Alexander, a civilian, has recently asserted on the floor of the House of Commons that the British position at the London conference respecting cruisers was proposed by the British admiralty itself. It was the admiralty that recommended, and the government which adopted the proposal respecting cruisers which is incorporated in the treaty.

And Mr. Alexander, speaking for the British admiralty, is now actively defending the treaty before the British Parliament. And the only criticism of the treaty in Great Britain is coming from those who are not now responsible for British naval policies.

Instead of being similar, this is the exact opposite of the situation in the United States. Here, those who are responsible for American naval policies are practically unanimous in objecting to the terms of the treaty because they are practically unanimous in their opinion that it is unjust and unfair and dangerously disadvantageous to the United States.

Equally false is the pretense that there is any true analogy between Japanese and American opposition to this treaty. As a matter of fact, the issue in Japan has turned upon a question of prerogatives—whether the general staff of the navy or the minister of foreign affairs shall finally decide upon questions of national defense.

It is an old quarrel, recently reopened, and does not concern the terms of the treaty itself. Even Admiral Kato, who is the leading champion of the general staff in this controversy, is not out to defeat the treaty on its merits.

On the contrary, the Japanese general staff nearly a month ago announced its adherence to the treaty, and throughout Japanese naval circles satisfaction with the terms of the treaty is practically unanimous.

If these facts are not well known to the administration at Washington, they ought to be. For the evidence that those who are responsible for British naval policy, and those who are responsible for Japanese naval policy, favor ratification of this treaty must be in the possession of the Department of State.

But these facts have been distorted by the American press, represented and distorted by the American negotiators of this treaty, who would have the American people believe that the British admiralty and the Japanese general staff are just as much opposed to the treaty as are the highest American naval authorities.

Against this attempt to deceive them, the American people and their Senators in Congress ought to be on their guard.

The London naval treaty is supported today by the British admiralty, which is responsible for British naval policy.

It is supported by the general staff of the Japanese Navy as well as by the Japanese Government.

It is opposed, however, by practically all of the highest naval authorities of the United States.

And it is covered up by the American negotiators for the American negotiators of this treaty to stop mendacity in an effort to deceive the American people regarding the true situation.

Fighting Drug Evil

Governor's Commission Has Vital Task

By virtue of the solicitude concern Governor Allen, a commission of seven members has started a campaign against the alarming increase in the use of habit-forming drugs.

Estimates naturally differ, but there is a general agreement that the number of drug addicts in this country has reached five millions.

The use of drugs is the most vicious habit which can afflict a people. It takes hold of its victims usually by stealth. Its grip becomes steady and progressive, often unrelenting. What starts out to be an innocent flirtation with drugs frequently culminates in a perpetual appetite, which leaves the unfortunate victim bereft of health, morals and decency.

Our eminent diagnosticians and sociologists confirm the popular suspicion that the crime wave is stimulated and aggravated by dope. The addict resorts to crimes of violence and torture. He is the cause of sorrow in his family and friends and is a source of danger to the innocent bystander who crosses his path. He is a burden and expense to the State. He is a drain upon society as a whole.

Governor Allen's commission has a two-fold mission. It should supply the humane system necessary to reclaim the hapless men and women who have fallen prey to the vice. It should propose a code of punishment equal to the offense for those malicious ringleaders who fatten off a traffic which consigns its victims to the agonies of a hell on earth.

In such a venture, which charged with mercy, kindness and stern justice, the commission will have the approval of the people of Massachusetts.

Curley's Decision

He'll Not Run for Governor

Mayor Curley will not run for Governor. He says the work to which he was elected by the people and which they expect him to perform will require all his time.

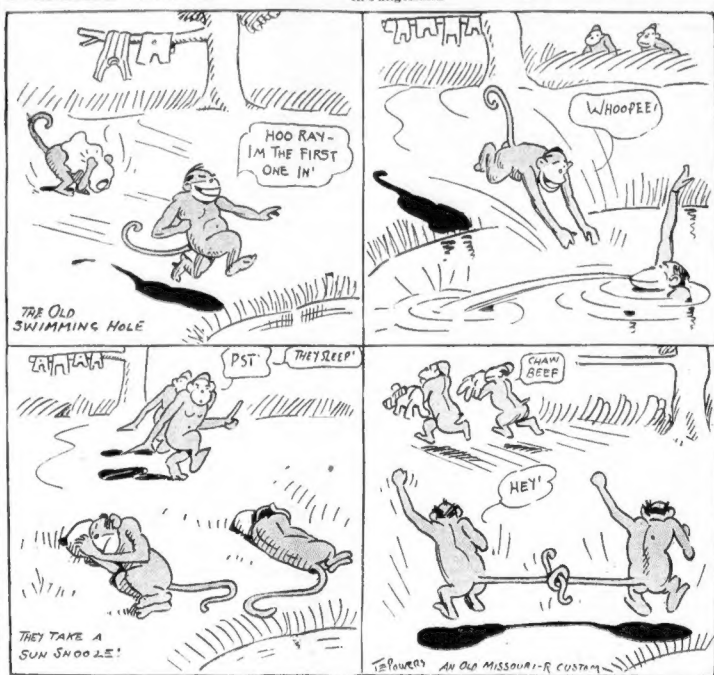

It is a sensible decision, quite worthy of him. Private employment requires full-time service; the public can be no less exacting in its demand. In fact, the public service suffers all too much from officials who neglect their duties in search of some more attractive office which tempts their vanity.

The Mayor is young, is equipped with good health and has abundant time to set his cap to some future ambition.

McINTYRE ABROAD

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, JULY 11.—The Paris tucked away behind the wide avenues and broad boulevards is the Paris of the true Parisian. In these networks of sidings and alleys will be found the native cafes with rowdy Rabelaisian names that so vastly amuse the French and have no effect whatever on their appetites.

Here, too, are the diminutive inns with their cigar-box like offices and complement of five and six rooms. They are as antiquated as they were in the Napoleonic days but fairly shine from perpetual scouring. They have been run by descendants of the same families for scores and scores of years.

One must slip over a lying mongrel dog asleep in every doorway to get inside. Candles are used for the lights and the prize free includes morning coffee of vin ordinaire. In one, gaudily named the Grand Hotel Mont-Valerien, I priced a front room overlooking the street. It was four francs—or 16 cents a day.

The room was one flight up and spick-span. The bed comfortable looking and the furnishings included a table, chair and wall mirror. One must go down to the little courtyard in the rear to use the community wash-basin. In such an inn a bath seemed utterly impossible.

I measured the sidewalk width outside—exactly twice and a half the length of my shoes. The street from sidewalk to sidewalk could be crossed in exactly two ordinary steps. The bistros were similarly dwarfed—the bar running about three feet in length—and containing a single and sticky card table.

Each bistro is a rallying point for political hotbeds of the community. After sundown there is always a fierce argument. Taxi-cabs cannot enter such streets and all deliveries are in narrow two-wheeled carts drawn by single horses. One may dine sumptuously with wine for two francs fifty—a dime.

The pen in my hotel room gives me a touch of homesickness. It is exactly like the one we had in the Gallipoli, O. postoffice for so many years.

On pleasant Sundays the mills running down the middle of the streets of Montmartre are dotted with "one man circuses." Strong men, jugglers, hand balances, steady contortionists and other exhibitionists spread their carpets and give their pathetic shows. Their tips are an amazing tribute to the French art of titillation. Each one draws its crowd but most of them drift—away before the collection.

My wife and I drew up in a taxi-cab to watch one equilibrist perform on a ladder. He seemed to sense the "foreign atmosphere" in his audience and played almost entirely to us. I dropped five francs in his cap and he held out a handful of sous for me to take change, greatly surprised, too, when I didn't. It was a trifle surprising myself.

I do not know whether it is anything personal or not but in rue Balagne there is a shop called: "A la lyre McIntyre."

A certain pawnshop near the Hotel de Ville has closed. It prospered in the flourishing days of the gigolo. In it was pledged jewelry taken from American women in the cabarets.

In one of those haberdashery shops, a flunky, following custom, brought the record of former purchases. The salesman looked at it while I peered over his shoulder. It recorded: "One cravat." He left me and never came back, another example of taking his place. I fear the poor soul made away with himself.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

SWEAT I'VE BEEN down hoing beans since when I began, round four with the light clinging like a wet, glib to the rough black pins. Up in the branches, bird call and whistle and chirp. Squirrels chattering like furry castanets. And the fragrance of breathing leaf and grass and soil seeping in waves across your sleepy face.

Great work, hoing beans at sun up. Earth cool and yielding as it sinks under your bare feet and the hoe slipping smooth and easy in it.

You straighten—winning at the creek you're going to beat. But you stop, thinking of nothing at all. Stand there, with the earth and the air and the light pressing close around you—pressing close as they press around the unconscious plants—taking it all in as if you were a bean plant yourself. Not thinking—surrendering yourself to it all.

Sprawling, shimmering, blazing glory of color—bronzes green, burnished gold, pooled purple of the shadows—spreading vastness of air—opening, opening, into infinite blue—crowding, pulsing pressure of the earth—the aromatic earth, swollen with the secret stirring of life.

So you stand, without thought, without thought—cleaned of thoughts, cleaned of self. Gone back into life again as if, by some miracle, you had become a little child. So you stand still as a child, still as a leafy plant, drawing your life without consciousness from the dirt by the stream.

Sweat is a great thing. It is as necessary for health as food or sleep or breath. People who have sweat are sick people—sicker even in their souls than in their bodies. I suspect that it will kill as many of us—lack of sweat.

Caught in a pattern of life that gives us no chance for hoing beans and sweat. Trapped in cities, locked away from the sky by buildings—locked away from the dirt by streets.

Thrown back into ourselves—in a cowering, constant contemplation of our selves and our pining peevishness and desire. No chance to sweat out those peevish and desires.

Girls Study the Skies

No Study More Worthy of Intelligent Beings

BRITISH UNDERGRADUATE GIRLS STUDY WORLDS AND SUNS FAR AWAY

The intelligent man takes an interest in his own front yard, a greater interest in his country, a still greater interest in his State, an infinitely greater interest in his nation, and a still greater interest in the earth as a whole, inheritance of the human race.

But human beings of today usually see very little beyond their own front yards, extremely little beyond the county and State in which they live. Few of them spread their interest around the world, and practically none give any serious thought to the universe outside of this little round ball.

They believe, in a vague way, that there is a heaven somewhere "up there," which they hope to attain, and believe also, vaguely, that there is a hell, somewhere "down there," which they hope to escape.

Otherwise they concentrate on their front yards.

This picture of young women at the Bedford College for Women, in London, shows human beings displaying an interest which, in generations to come, perhaps 100,000, perhaps 1,000,000 years from now, will be man's GREATEST interest.

These young women are instructed by Sir Frank Dyson, Astronomer Royal. They have an astronomical observatory of their own, and a fine telescope, and they USE IT.

Someone said that the two most interesting things in the world are the stary firmament and the moral nature of man.

In these days of semi-civilization we study the moral nature of man chiefly as it is shown in bottlegging and holdups. And study the stary firmament not at all.

In magnificent language the Bible reminds us:

"THE HEAVENS DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD, AND THE FIRMAMENT SHOWETH HIS HANDIWORK." It is only in the glory of the heavens, beautifully lighted in daylight, and the greater glory of the stary sky at night, that the greatness of this universe can be appreciated, and the grandeur of the power that rules it.

It would be a good thing if more American colleges would take a deep interest in astronomy, establishing observatories, no matter how modest, following the example of this British college for girls.

Women have long shown especial capacity for astronomical studies.

Some of the most important work in the greatest observatories is done by women.

The stary of Herschel worked with her brother, side by side, aiding him and sharing his glory.

The day is coming, although it is not yet here, when the stary Alderman will seem more important to ninety-nine per cent of the world's young women than a powder-puff or lipstick.

F. S.—Notice the fine, spiritual faces of these young British girls who take up astronomy as an earnest study. The second girl from the left looks like an angel, and probably is one. She is a thousand girls whose interest is in the exposure of their knees or the latest dance step wiggles.
